

Santa Claus Asks Uncle George's Aid In Christmas Rush

Among the hundreds of letters which came to Uncle George's desk yesterday was one postmarked "Cloudland." This is what it says:—

SANTA CLAUS'S TOY FACTORY
ON THE LOLLYPOP RIVER
FOOT OF SUGARPLUM STREET,
CLOUDLAND

Dec. 1, 1926.

Uncle George,
Care The GRAPHIC,
New York city.

Dear Uncle George: This is going to be the happiest Christmas your young readers have ever known. I am so busy I must have some help, and, knowing how kind The GRAPHIC has always been to the children of your great city, I want you to help me. Will you do it? If so, telephone me, 12937-4659 Skytop, or write me immediately. Say "Yes!"

With oceans of love and thousands of kisses, I am,

SANTA CLAUS.

Here are some kisses. * * *

Uncle George's reply follows:—

NEW YORK EVENING
GRAPHIC
25 CITY HALL PLACE
NEW YORK CITY

Dec. 3, 1926.

Santa Claus,
Toytown on the Lollypop,
Cloudland.

Dear Santa Claus: The GRAPHIC will be delighted to help you, provided you write all the notices yourself. I have been all over New York city and I find that the place which you should like is Rose Danceland, 125th Street at 7th Avenue. The owners are Charles Marks and Markus Dicker, who will gladly help, as they have plenty of room.

Send the toys at once.

Lovingly, UNCLE GEORGE.

P. S. I inclose some hay for your reindeer.

Flays Frivolity In Hall Church

fous and the ruin from them often so tragic and terrible that attention should be called to the fact that the churches involved in the Hall-Mills case were characterized—certainly in the unhappy past—by these very things.

Scores Church Atmosphere

All the way through the present case we have had references to card playing and frivolous theatricals and other indications of tolerance of worldly indulgences, rather than devotion to the deep things of the spiritual life, which God's word enjoins and the history of the church has proved necessary and wise.

Little wonder that in such an atmosphere temptation grew rather than diminished, and a latitudinarian philosophy of church life finally fruited in appalling transgressions and dire tragedy.

As I said in my last article, I would not bring wholesale indictment against the ministry, for the overwhelming majority of them are good and true men, but it is also unhappily the fact that far too much tolerance of worldliness is seen in church ranks, and particularly among the religious modernists.

In the face of the well known conditions of today, who can deny that religious modernism LOWERS the ethical standard and results in a weakening on the part of its devotees of the power to resist temptation?

At the heart of real Christianity is the Cross, and the Cross principle of life—self-sacrifice for service—has always made glorious heroes and holy men and women.

When the Cross is denied in modernism, these restraints and inspirations are largely removed, and the individual, even though he be a preacher, tends to follow his selfish desires even into sin.

All Denominations Affected

Furthermore, while the writer
referred to in this magazine article
restricts her criticism to rectors, nevertheless I must say that while worldliness is more notorious in
the particular communion to which the writer refers, it is all too prevalent in all denominations
and sects.

churches to theatricals and dancing is part of the general trend of the times to glorification of the flesh over the spirit.

The modern church must turn back to the simple faith and holy living of Apostolic Christianity—people and pastors alike—or inevitable disaster will fall upon us.
This has been the burden of my appeal for nine years. I have not tried to "reform" New York, as some have said, but I have tried to call the church people—especially the Protestants—back to the standards of righteousness contained in God's Holy Word.
